Food an adult will enjoy or a meal the kids will actually eat? Fresh ingredients or fast service? When it comes to choosing a casual restaurant, it often seems customers have to prioritize and then settle. Cabo Fresh California Mexican Surf Grill changes all that. It offers everything on your checklist plus something you may not have considered: an eco-friendly restaurant using fully sustainable, biodegradable, compostable products. Restaurateur James DiVilio, his wife Diana, and their three children all work in the restaurant business together. James started Cabo Fresh to fill, "a growing need for fast casual restaurants serving real food that is good for you in a fun, clean and beautiful environment." He has 27 years experience in creating and launching innovative restaurant concepts. Some of his previous ventures include Chefs of NY in East Northport, Torcello's Italian Restaurant in Elwood, and The Baja Grill Mexican chain. In addition to Cabo Fresh, DiVilio currently owns Eldorado American Grille in Port Jefferson Station. He sold the other businesses, which have all continued to thrive, in order to focus on creating this new brand.

The menu at Cabo Fresh is simple, but the choices enable endless customization. Choose from gourmet burritos, salads, tacos, Baja Bowls, quesadillas, nachos and a delicious kids menu. The food is made fresh every day, without many of the chemicals commonly found in fast food. Drinks include fresh fruit smoothies or beer and margaritas for a fun night out or impromptu after-work get together. There's also an affordable and appetizing catering menu with taco and nacho bar options.

When creating Cabo Fresh, the DiVilio family decided a green business was a positive, constructive way for them to give back. Their goal is to use products made of eco-friendly sugarcane paper and cornstarch plastic. Kitchen food waste is composted, cooking oils, bottles and cans are recycled and the cleaning products used in the restaurant are non-toxic. The tables, chairs and wainscoting are all made from reclaimed or sustainable products and reclaimed metal is used whenever possible.

Cabo Fresh is the perfect place to enjoy a meal before or after a movie, or anytime! Come in and see why they're winning rave reviews and recommendations. Located at 2182 Nesconset Highway, Stony Brook, in the Loews Movie Theatre Shopping Center. Check out their website at www.cabofreshmex.com or call 631-751-2226.
